Monday and Saturday.

LOUISVILLE, KY.:
TUESDAY MORNING.—Oct. 21, 1860.

WHOLESALE HAUL OF COUNTERFEIT MONEY AND ARREST OF THE CONSPIRATORS.—Near a fortnight since a female, whose name was supposed to be Buran, passed several counterfeit three dollar notes, purporting to be on the Bank of Kokomo, Wisconsin, upon various shopkeepers in the upper portion of the city. The police was notified and kept a sharp look out, but she eluded their vigilance. However, last Tuesday she called upon Mr. Hogan, wig maker, on Fourth street, and ordered a wig for herself. She was accompanied by a man whom she called Buckley, and whom she called her husband. On Saturday the wig was completed according to the arrangement, and she called for it. In payment she offered a counterfeited ten dollar note on the Merchant's Bank of St. Louis. This exciting the suspicions of Mr. Hogan, who gave a detailed description of the parties, and on Sunday morning officer Bligh discovered that the pair were staying at the St. Cloud Hotel. Mr. Bligh and Chief Agent proceeded thereto and made a search, but found no counterfeited money or any other evidence. In the meantime Buckley had gone to Cincinnati, and that he was expected to return during Sunday night. Officer Hammann was stationed at the hotel, and when he arrived about 5 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Hammann took him into custody. Mr. Bligh shortly afterwards arrived and took the accused prisoner, who proved a regular Quaker in counterfeiting bank notes and bogus coin, about $1,600 of both being in his possession. Among other counterfeited were five on the Bank of Lafayette, Illinois, ten on the Merchants' Bank of St. Louis, twenties and tens on the Bank of Ashland, thirteen on the Bank of Kokomo, Wis., thirteen on the Southern Bank of Kentucky, twenties on the Bank of Louisville, tens on the Citizens' Bank of New Orleans, ones and tens on the State Bank of Ohio, and bogus gold dollars. Some of the notes were good imitations of the genuine bills and likely to be taken by the unwary, while others were poorly executed. Buckley and the woman both are now in jail, and will probably be examined to-day.

A SLIPPERY CONSPIRATOR.—A number of prisoners were before the Circuit Court yesterday morning, and among the number one Mr. Heenan, who rests under the imputation of thieving. Everybody being busy, Mr. H. thought he would exercise his limbs, and so quietly walked out of the Court house, and was making tracks for freedom when officer Tiller met him. "Hello," said Carter, "you've got through quick. I thought your trial was set for Wednesday." "So it is," replied Heenan, "and I'm just walking round the jail." "I think you're," said Tiller, and he conducted the great thief, and saw him safe in good company. It was very high night from durance ville, and was only frustrated by the accidental meeting with Tiller.

BURNING OF THE KENTUCKY SCHOOL OR MEDICINE.—About half past seven o'clock yesterday morning, the Kentucky School of Medicine, situated at the corner of Fifth and Green streets, was discovered to be on fire. The alarm was given, but before the flames could be extinguished, the major portion of the inside and the roof was destroyed. Fortunately, the library, chemical apparatus and museum were saved, else the loss would have been irreparable. The building had just been renovated and repaired, and the school entered upon the preliminaries for a successful session. About this time last year, a fire occurred in the building, but with less disastrous results. The fire probably came from the workshop above the school, the building belonging to a cobbler, as fuses were noted to have been seen in both the first and second stories when discovered. The loss will be covered by the insurance $5,000. We are gratified to state that the unfortunate occurrence will not interrupt the approaching course of lectures, suitable rooms having been secured in the Masonic Temple for the temporary use of the School, and where the preparatory lectures will continue. The School will be rebuilt as rapidly as possible, and perhaps in a month be in condition for occupancy.

ACADEMIES OF KENTUCKY.—We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Moore & Sorb in our column this morning. The Louisville nurseries are extensive and embrace all the general varieties of fruit trees, evergreens, roses and plants usually found in first class nurseries. Read the advertisement for particulars.

The Marshal of the Chancery Court will continue the sale of elegant furniture on Broadway, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, this morning at 10 o'clock. The parlor and dining room furniture, two carriages, two cows, etc., will be sold to-day. The sale will begin near the corner of Third and Main streets will pass within one square of the place of sale.

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE.—That the impression may not obtain credence abroad that there is but one Medical School in Louisville, and that the one burned yesterday morning, the Medical Department of the University will commence the sixth annual session at the College on Chestnut street, between Eighth and Ninth streets, on the first Monday in November. It was the Kentucky School of Medicine that was burned, and the institution under notice. At an early date there were many students attending the pre-clinical lectures at the University, and above the hundred will be concentrated in the new building, forming probably the largest class for years past. These students present and to arrive are from half the states of the Union, including several from the Pacific coast. It will be observed that no student who intended to attend the University need be affected in any way by the fire. Elsewhere we allude to the intentions of the directory of the Kentucky School of Medicine.

THE HEN. JOHN YOUNG BROWN will speak in Brandenburg, Madison county, on Monday, the 22d inst., it being Circuit Court day.

A CONSPIRATION TO SCIENCE.—We observe that it is stated that S. Cassidy, Esq., has deposited in the Kentucky Museum the very excellent cabinet of the learned S. Addison Cassidy, his son. A contemporaneous very just remarks that the collection is of rare value, comprising more than two thousand paleontological specimens, selected and arranged with scientific care, many of them discovered and described for the first time by the collector. Surely no mere trifling moment could be diverted by the affadit's desire to display his cabinet and general knowledge. All the cabinet and general knowledge will be the highest collected and faithful source for the benefit and pleasure afforded them by the result of his patient toil and research in the field of science.

DRABBLE.—During the fire yesterday morning the fireengines Watkins met with an accident, one cylinder head being blown out. The Weatherford was also crippled in some manner. Both will be ready for service in a day or two.

CINCINNATI RACES.—The racing race at the Cincinnati Park on Saturday was exciting. The track was miles heat, three heats in six, in which there were six entries, Emerald, Ned, John Bell, Joe Diamond, Grit and Fillmore. Emerald won the first heat, Grit the second two, and Ned the third. The fifth heat was trodden in the dark, and the judges were forced to declare it off. The last heat was to have been decided yesterday.

FRANCIS.—Robert Huller was in the city yesterday, en route for Memphis. We can promise the good people of that town a rare treat to the mystical and strange.

The Grand Lodge of Masons. The delegates to the body have been daily arriving since the middle of last week, and yesterday morning nearly the entire subordinate Lodge representation were ready to take their seats. For the purpose of concluding the various preliminary business, it was deemed best not to commence the session until the evening.

Accordingly at 3 o'clock p.m. the Grand Master took the East, and the Grand Lodge of Masons in Kentucky was opened for its sixty-first annual communication on the Third Degree of Masonry, in "simple form," the following Grand Officers being present: H. T. Wilson, Grand Master; L. Landrus, D. G. Master; J. W. Hinman, Past Master; J. W. Bassett, G. W. Williams, H. A. Williams, A. G. Holmes, G. Treasurer; R. Apperson, Jr., G. S. Draxon, pro tem. Wm. P. Ross, G. J. Deason, John P. Fleming, G. Marshal; Edward Richardson, G. S. E.; Robert C. Mathews, G. P.; J. B. Richard- son, G. S. and T.

There was a large delegation in attendance, consisting of about two hundred and thirty delegates from Subordinate Lodges, with a large number of Past Masters and visiting brethren.

The proceedings of the last Grand Communication having been printed and furnished all the Subordinate Lodges, a reading was, on motion, dispensed with.

Grand Master Harvey T. Wilson then read his address. We make a few brief extracts from this interesting document.

ORWING REMARKS.

My Brethren:—The Sixty First Grand Communication of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky brings together, once more, those whom the benign ruler of human affairs has spared a little longer to do the work of God. We are gathered here to witness the consummation of our meeting, that has watched so graciously over us and our affairs, and permitted us to meet once more.

May my spirit abide with us.
